INCIDENT MANAGEMENT

An organization's hotline reporting system serves many purposes, such as providing:

- A confidential place for employees to clarify policy and discuss or report concerns
- A communications channel beyond the rumor mill
- A way to direct employee questions to the appropriate resource
- An opportunity to provide guidance before a poor decision is made
- An early warning of issues or problem areas brewing in the organization
- A last internal stop for whistleblowers before they take an issue outside the organization to a regulator or attorney

Challenge: Moving Past Winging Legal Compliance

Patsy Estis, Vice President of Human Resources at El Pollo Loco, is crazy about chicken – and making sure employees are happy. “In the restaurant industry, we live and die on our reputation. That means our reputation with our employees as well as with customers.”

Maintaining a good relationship with employees involves listening to feedback and acknowledging concerns. This kind of communication has the added benefit of reducing legal risk, according to Estis. “We want to generate employee communication. If people have questions, issues or if they are upset, we want them to tell us so we know how to make employment better at El Pollo Loco.”

Initially, El Pollo Loco used a basic employee hotline service and a relatively disorganized case management system. With only spreadsheets and scattered notes, it was impossible to see any trends emerging in the data. The process was clearly inadequate for El Pollo Loco's needs.

Solution: EthicsPoint® Organizes and Streamlines Reporting

Estis helped choose EthicsPoint to provide a single case management product that could improve communication, identify trends and analyze data. The company worked with NAVEX's Implementation Services team to configure the system to meet its specific needs. “The case management system is set up within each division of our organization. Reports automatically go to the right manager. The system enables us to keep track of each issue and resolution,” said Estis.

Estis then uses tools within the case management system to analyze the data. She now has a greater ability to identify trends in the workplace.

Results: Ability to Analyzes Trends Helps Company Keep Employees Happy

The new level of insight into compliance risks helps El Pollo Loco identify any concerns, understand if the issue is more common in a region, and handle the situation early.

"From a human resources perspective, it is critical to analyze trends. If a particular issue begins to appear more frequently, we can decide whether an organizational solution is appropriate." With Estis's team listening to employee concerns and responding to potential issues, the company's commitment to keeping employees happy is readily apparent.

El Pollo Loco uses NAVEX's services to stay crazy about employees. By listening to feedback and increasing communication across the organization, El Pollo Loco is able to keep abreast of and address issues that cause concern to their employees.
