

Compliance Training for the Modern Workplace

Employees today are expected to understand a widening range of important compliance-specific topics as well as to personally manage and limit regulatory and compliance risk for themselves and their organization. This is best achieved with a carefully designed and legally-accurate compliance training approach that informs employees, aligns with regulations, and protects individuals and organizations from risk.

NAVEX's compliance training category focuses on the legal and regulatory risks that your employees face on the job. Based on these unique risks, it provides them with best practice approaches to ensure compliance and alignment to behavioral standards and expectations. Built around both the word of and the implications of the law, our courses enable your learners to grasp the applicability of regulations and legal requirements within the context of their workplaces and roles.

Our compliance training courses inform your learners on how to spot, prevent and avoid key legal and compliance-specific risks and behaviors – bribery, corruption, fraud, and other illegal activities – and how to best respond to and report issues. Based on decades of legal and regulatory expertise and course content individually validated by leading legal firms, NAVEX delivers the most timely, relevant and accurate compliance training content available today.
